FOR THE DOCTORS.

Lock-jaw In a Rare and Terrible Form.

It Came From No Apparent Cause—The Awful Suffering of a Ten-Year-Old Boy.

During the Avant trial there was a considerable controversy as to whether lock-jaw ever appeared without some apparent cause. The defense held that it was a disease that would make its appearance, occasionally, whether there was a wound to cause it or not. Here is a case in point that is told by the Cincinnati Post, and will be interesting at this particular time:

"Dr. D. D. Bramble, of No. 165 Broadway, is preparing a paper to be read before the Cincinnati Medical Society at the next meeting.

"The paper relates to the disease and death of Johnny Massa, a 10-year-old lad, who died several days ago from what is known in medical practice as idiopathic tetanus. In plain language the boy died from a rare form of lock-jaw.

"The victim was the son of John J. Massa, the oldest employe of the Wells-Fargo Express Company in this city.

"He lives at No. 189 Broadway. Johnny was a remarkably healthy child, more than well developed for his age. About two weeks ago he was taken with convulsions, rapidly followed by a stiffening of the muscles of the neck and jaw.

"In fact, the jaws soon became set. Drs. D. D. Bramble and J. C. Kunz were called in, and at once pronounced the case to be one of lock-jaw. What mystified them was that after an examination they found no superficial injury, such as generally leads to lock-jaw.

"The doctors then realized that that they had come across one of the worst and rarest forms of lock-jaw known to the medical world, and called idiopathic tetanus.

"Idiopathic lock-jaw comes when it is least expected, and without any apparent cause. The first symptom is fainting spells, then convulsions, followed by a stiffening of the muscles of the neck and jaw.

"In this case the patient went into convulsions that lasted at times two hours. Then came a relaxation, during which milk and other liquid food was administered by means of a glass tube.

"During the last two days of the boy's illness the convulsions were more frequent and lasted longer. Every muscle in the boy's body became perfectly rigid, and he lay on the back of his head and heels. In turning him over his whole body turned as if there were no joints.

"The mere laying of the finger on the boy's body threw him into an awful convulsion. The disease is always fatal, and after ten days of intense suffering the boy died."

A Million Friends.

A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. If you have never used this Great Cough Medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs. A BIG SPREAD.

Daly, Pearce & Green Offer Some "Profitable Suggestions."

Daly, Pearce & Green appropriate to themselves an extensive space in to-day's LEAF-CHRONICLE. It means business, however, and they proceed accordingly straight to the point by offering some "profitable suggestions" to the public on the subject that is just now uppermost in the minds of a great many, viz.: What to buy for the holidays? We submit that after one has read their advertisement attentively all trouble on that score will be removed. The judicious buyer will weigh carefully what they say regarding the best way to enjoy one's self during Christmas, and in order to do this, they say, one should be perfectly comfortable. How this state is to be acquired the LEAF-CHRONICLE leaves it for them to say, adding only that it will pay every one to read their handsomely displayed advertisement on the second page of this paper.

A BRACE OF RUNAWAYS.

Ed. Gold's Horse At New Providence, and Another In the City.

Considerable excitement was caused by a runaway horse, with buggy accompaniment, between Clarksville and New Providence last evening about 5 o'clock. The turnout was the property of Ed. Gold. The horse ran away in New Providence, and came in the direction of Clarksville, like a ball shot from a cannon. All along the route he was seen by passers and many attempts were made to stop him, all of which proved futile. He kept Second street until he reached West avenue, turning into this thoroughfare, leaving the remainder of the buggy at the corner of the above street and the avenue. The shafts, however, remained attached to the animal, which continued running, making a circuit and coming to the business part of the city, where he was captured. The buggy is almost a total wreck, both front wheels being demolished completely. The horse was not seriously hurt.

HERE'S ANOTHER ONE.

McGehee Bros., bought a very fine animal from some horse traders from Waverly yesterday. They hitched him to a buggy and he worked all right. When they put him to their delivery wagon, however, he did not do so well, running away with the wagon, and trying to put it in Lynes Bros' butcher shop. There was very little damage done to the vehicle, and none to the horse.

For colds, croup, asthma, bronchitis and sore throat, use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, and get the genuine.

A Juvenile Society.

There will be a meeting of the little folks, from six ten years of age, at the home of Mrs. Tom Herndon, Friday, Dec. 9, at 3 p. m. The mothers are requested to meet with them, to assist them in organizing a society, to meet once a week through the winter and spring months. The program will consist of bible quotations in response to roll-call, recitations; readings, letter writing, bible stories, games, and in fact everything that will improve and entertain the dear little ones. Stir up, little folks, and let's find how much good we can accomplish in six months.

For Page of the Senate.

Horace J. Bowers, of Dickson county, is a candidate for Page of the State Senate. Intelligent, polite and affable, he could not fail to fill with credit and satisfaction the position he seeks. He is the son of Maj. J. M. Bowers, Clerk and Master of the Chancery court at Charlotte, and formerly editor of the Dickson County Press, the first paper in the State to attack McDowell, Buchanan & Co., and their undemocratic heresies.—American.

Mr. Bowers has many friends in this county who will be glad to see him elected to the above position. He is one of the best and most fearless Democrats in this part of the State.

Troubled With Heart Disease.

Says the Henderson Gleaner: "The Gleaner regrets to learn that that estimable lady, Mrs. Jas. E. Schofield, is very low with heart disease. The worst is expected and her children, Mrs. Oliver, at Sullivan, Ind., and Mrs. Frank Fiedlerling, at Clarksville, Tenn., have been telegraphed for. Her other children, Mrs. Robt. Gough and Mrs. James Sandefur reside in this city."

Mrs. Fiedlerling left here last evening to be at the bedside of her mother.

In His New Office.

Dr. J. C. Meriwether is now located in his new office, 106 north Third street, opposite Squire Caldwell's stable, in the new Glenn building, and wants all his friends and the public generally to call on him. Dec. 5, d. t. f.

WILL KILL THE BILL.

Kentucky's World's Fair Appropriation Unconstitutional.

The Court of Appeals Will Hold That It Was Not Regularly Passed and Will Kill It.

A special from Frankfort to the Courier-Journal says:

"Both legislative houses seemed more anxious to know what the Court of Appeals did Tuesday than to do something themselves. Early in the morning a rumor spread to the effect that the court's decision in the World's Fair case was ready to be handed down when court convened at 11 o'clock, and as the prospective opinion probably embraces the decision of a point in which all the members are interested, many went below or outside to learn the truth of the report. There was no decision to-day, but it has leaked out, and it can be all but authoritatively stated that a decision has been reached by the court, and will be handed down on Thursday. This decision will kill the Kentucky exhibit at Chicago past resuscitation. The court will hold that the bill was not constitutionally passed; that the final amendments to it were not adopted by the same vote required to pass it, and thus sustain every point made by the Governor in all of his vetoes, and his position in recalling the Legislature in extra session to correct the mistakes that the Senate has refused to admit.

"It is possible that the opinion may go still further and hold that the Legislature had no right to make such an appropriation, even had the bill been finally passed by the requisite number of votes. The court is said to be divided on this latter issue. If it is a part of the decision it will, of course preclude the possibility of the passage of another bill on the subject, and those who doggedly forced the matter into the courts will have succeeded in defeating the State exhibit.

"Even members of the Senate Committee that sent out the famous address to the people, and who have heard of the prospective decision, claim to be glad that the question of what constitutes a 'final passage' has been settled by the courts, though settled in favor of the Governor's position and against their own."

PASSENGERS EXCITED.

A Sheriff's Posse Arrests a Negro On a Train.

Passengers on the Northwestern train, which left here Tuesday night, says the Banner, were considerably excited by an incident which happened at Gillen's Station. At that point the Sheriff of Dickson county, with several deputies, entered the train in search of a negro, who was wanted on a charge of murdering a man named Harrison in Dyer county. They found a man answering the description they had in the smoker, but before they could lay hands on him he succeeded in putting out the lights. The officers rushed on him in the dark, however, and made the arrest. The prisoner was then taken off the train.

DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

Is the Argument in the Avant Murder Case.

Col. House began his argument before the jury in the Avant murder trial this morning. He made one of his strong, eloquent pleas for his client, speaking about two hours. He will be followed this evening by Hon. W. M. Daniel also for the defense. R. H. Burney will then close the case late this evening, speaking for the prosecution. The jury will get the case this evening or to-morrow morning.

The next murder case will be that of Thornton Johnson, col., charged with killing Ben Coleman near St. Bethlehem last summer.

JAY GOULD'S WILL.

Delay in Filing It for Probate—Intimations Respecting It.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Interest in Mr. Gould's will will be greatly stimulated by the announcement which was authoritatively made that the document would not be filed for probate for some weeks—possibly not for a month.

This delay will give rise to no end of conjectures in Wall street, where it is the common belief that Mr. Gould's principal properties are to be managed by trustees for a period of years. Some of the intimate friends of the dead millionaire were questioned and disclaimed any knowledge of the will. The few persons who are in a position to know something about the will were speechless on that subject.

It is well known that Mr. Gould was reticent to the verge of secretiveness about his will. There is reason to believe that he drew the whole or greater part of it himself and that no more than three persons besides himself knew anything about its provisions.

Early in 1891, he, unattended, took the document to a safe deposit vault and locked it up. About six weeks before he died he went alone to the vault and took the will away with him. It will be subsequently retained either in his possession or in the custody of his lawyer. Possibly some changes were made in its provisions.

One theory advanced to explain the delay in making Mr. Gould's will public is that there are certain minor, yet important Gould interests which can be adjusted more advantageously before the terms of the will are made public.

In some quarters it is said that the bulk of the property has been willed to George Gould, the remainder to be divided about equally among the other heirs.

CRYING FOR PROTECTION.

Great Convention of British Farmers in London.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Representatives from nearly every chamber of agriculture in the United Kingdom were present Wednesday morning at the national conference of British agriculturists in Memorial hall, Farringdon. Doleful tales were interchanged among the farmers present of farms being deserted, the soil untilled and agriculture brought to the verge of ruin. There was a general consensus of opinion in favor of a protective tariff for agricultural products.

The conference is being held in conformity with resolutions adopted by various chambers of agriculture throughout Great Britain to the effect that some decisive steps should be taken at once to relieve the distressed condition of British trade in general and British agriculture in particular and also declaring that no permanent good can be obtained without some stringent measures being adopted by which the British producer shall be placed upon a footing where he can compete with the foreign producer upon fairer terms. Especially is this urged as regards manufactured goods that can be produced in this country.

LOST IN THE MOUNTAINS.

Found After Wandering for Nineteen Days Without Food.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 8.—W. H. Beller, deputy sheriff of Mason county, who was lost last month in a snow-storm while hunting in the mountains, was found alive Tuesday on Cherry river by H. E. Alderson. Beller was in a terrible state of mind, and subsisted for nineteen days on one pheasant and one mountain mouse. He is unable to give a clear statement of his wanderings.

Will Test Their Citizenship.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 8.—The Miami Indians of northern Indiana are preparing for a series of suits in the circuit courts to test the question whether they are citizens of the United States, and if not to recover moneys paid by them into the county treasury under decisions of the supreme court of the state and general treaties with the government of the United States. Fifty-one sections of land were granted by the United States government to the Miami in 1838. The case is attracting much attention.

Lambertson in All Likelihood.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—It is very probable that George M. Lambertson, of Lincoln, Neb., will be appointed assistant secretary of the treasury to succeed General Nettleton, resigned. Mr. Lambertson was once United States district attorney of Nebraska. He is about forty-four years of age, is a brother-in-law of Indiana Congressman Morgan and has frequently appeared in important cases before the supreme court of the United States. He is endorsed by Senators Paddock and Manderson.

EDWARD P. DEACON.

He Wants an Absolute Divorce From His Wife.

If Mrs. Deacon Is Found Guilty She Will Be Liable to Fine and Imprisonment.

Special to the Leaf-Chronicle.

AIX, France, Dec. 8.—The appeal of Edward Parker Deacon for an absolute divorce comes up in the court to-day, and in view of the victory achieved by Mrs. Deacon in the Court of Appeals, the action of her attorneys to-day is looked forward to with unusual interest. The large influence of the Abelle family is used in every direction for Mrs. Deacon, and they will do everything to save her from the consequences of the action her husband has brought against her for the criminal relations with Abelle. Should Mrs. Deacon be found guilty of this charge she would be liable to imprisonment or fine or both. With reference to the charge against Mr. Deacon, that he subsidized certain journals, current rumor has it that the Abelle family spent 800,000 francs to obtain Mr. Deacon's conviction, and that of this sum 120,000 francs were spent in procuring articles hostile to him to be published in French newspapers. Mr. Deacon's lawyer, Maitre Clunot, the highest authority in France on International law, proved to the court that French tribunals have no jurisdiction over foreigners in divorce cases unless both parties to the suit consent to submit to the French law.

The judges of the Tribunal of the Seine admitted the correctness of this contention and volunteered to give Mr. Deacon the custody of all the children if he so desired. This done the presiding judge read Mrs. Deacon a lesson on propriety, which made her so angry that she ran out of court without hearing the end of it. She at once proceeded to the Convent of Our Lady of the Assumption and abducted her eldest daughter, Gladys, and has thus far managed to secrete her from Mr. Deacon. She appealed to the first chamber of the Court of Appeal against the decision of the Tribunal of the Seine, and her side of the case was ably presented by Hestre Barboux. It is supposed that she will now obey the order of the Court and replace the child in the Convent of Our Lady of the Assumption. The judgment of the first chamber of the Court of Appeal remains in force until judgment is pronounced on Mr. Deacon's application for divorce.
